Bet ideas for your punters

Most punters browse statistics from various sources in order to get an idea of a team's past performances and the probability of a specific event happening.

There are thousands of webpages providing statistical data in the form of tables and charts but, only small snippets of information are really needed to help the punter come to a decision. We've developed Bet Assist with the punter in mind.

Rather than having to leave your page to search for market-specific stats across multiple pages, we provide all the appropriate data and probabilities alongside your odds. This enables the punter to focus on the relevant information, prompting action and boosting confidence in the selected outcome.
